My dear Mr. Dulles:

During the period 15-17 November 1960, as part of our Strategy Study which aims to further a broad understanding of international relations and the major factors involved in the formulation and implementation of national objectives, policies and a national strategic concept, we shall scrutinize the Cold War, examining Free World objectives and available courses of action to counter Communist aggression.

As academic methods in pursuing this phase of the Strategy Study we will use lectures, seminars and panel discussions. I would be most pleased if you could accept an invitation to send a representative to participate in this program as a consultant, conducting seminars and sitting on the panels covering the subject "Employment of U. S. Unconventional Warfare Forces in the Cold War." For those seminars in which the consultant is prepared to discuss TOP SECRET material, the participants will be restricted to U. S. nationals with a TOP SECRET clearance.

This study will be conducted by the Naval Warfare Department which this year numbers about one hundred seventy five and includes officers from all branches of the armed services and a few civilian students from various governmental agencies.

I deeply appreciate the past contributions your agency has made to our programs here at the College and your kindness in committing yourself to help us with lecturers this fall. I sincerely hope that we may have this additional benefit of the expertise of your agency in our examination of the Cold War.

Sincerely yours,

B. L. AUSTIN
